

“Strength In Diversity”
From an CRNA Standpoint!

Objectives

- To help inform, enlighten, and educate men interested in a nursing career that will cultivate the clandestine field of Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist. Desiring to broaden men's aptitude to continue into the nursing field.
- Answer individual question.

What is a CRNA?

- Certified Registered Nurse Anesthetist is a licensed professional nurse who provides the same anesthesia service as a MDA.
- CRNA are considered an Advanced Clinical Nurse Specialist.
- Arguable one of the highest level of nursing that is achievable.

What does a CRNA do?

- Examine pts medical history, allergies, or illnesses to ensure a safe anesthesia

What does a CRNA do?

- Provide pre/intra/post operative care to patients
- Administers anesthesia during surgical, therapeutic, diagnostic and obstetric procedures.
- Perform Epidural, Spinal, or other nerve blocks

What is the difference between a spinal and epidural

What is a nerve block

Other types of surgery require anesthesia

Where can a CRNA work?

- Medical and Surgical Hospitals
- Critical access hospital
- Mobile surgery centers
- Outpatient Care Centers
- Office space (Plastics, dental, eyes, pain management)
- US Military Medical facilities

What is the annual salary of a CRNA

- According to Beckerhospitalreview.com
- Salary differs among state to state from 60-100 dollars/hr
- Annually that is 125k-208k/yr